Highwaymen were robbers who travelled on horseback and stole money, jewellery and other valuable items from people travelling along roads during the 17th and 18th centuries. They often targeted wealthy travellers, such as merchants, nobles and people carrying money between towns. Because there were very few police officers at the time and many roads passed through lonely countryside, highwaymen found it easier to attack and escape. Some became famous and were even romanticised in stories and poems as daring and adventurous figures. However, in reality, highwaymen were criminals who could be dangerous and violent. If caught, they often faced severe punishment, including execution.

1. Who were the main people that highwaymen usually targeted?
2. What does the word romanticised mean in this paragraph?
   Forgotten by everyone Made to seem more exciting and heroic Punished severely Hidden from the public
3. Why do you think highwaymen were able to operate more easily in the countryside than in towns? Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

The paragraph says that highwaymen were sometimes portrayed as adventurous heroes, but also explains that they were criminals.

Why do you think writers and poets, such as Alfred Noyes in The Highwayman, might choose to present highwaymen as exciting characters despite their crimes?

Use evidence from the text and your own ideas to explain your answer.

Monday 9th November
TBAT: explore the author's choice of language.

Words/phrases we will find in the text:

Gagged	Prevented from speaking by covering the mouth
Muskets	Old-fashioned guns
Writhed	Twisted and struggled in pain
Priming	Preparing a gun to fire
Brandished	Waved a weapon in a threatening way
Casement	A window that opens outward
Refrain	A repeated phrase or sound
Rapier	A long, thin sword
Clatters	Makes a loud rattling sound

Multiple choice questions:

1. What does the phrase "the hours crawled by like years" suggest?

a) Time was moving normally.

b) Bess was enjoying her wait.

c) Time felt painfully slow.

d) Midnight arrived quickly.

2. Why did Bess fire the musket?

a) To escape

b) To scare the soldiers

c) To warn the Highwayman that danger awaited him

d) By accident

3. Why does the poet repeat the word "marching"?

a) To make the poem longer

b) To emphasise the unstoppable arrival of the soldiers

c) To show the soldiers are tired

d) To make the soldiers sound friendly

Monday 9th November

TBAT: explore the author's choice of language.

Independent:

1. What does Bess's decision tell us about her feelings for the Highwayman?

2. Why do you think the soldiers mock Bess with "sniggering jest"?

3. Find two examples where the poet creates suspense. Explain how they make the reader feel.

4. How does the repetition of "Tlot tlot, tlot tlot" contribute to the atmosphere of the poem?

5. The poet writes: "Her musket shattered the moonlight"
Why is this more effective than simply saying "she fired the gun"?

CH: The poem presents Bess as the true hero of the story.
Do you agree?

I agree/disagree that Bess is the true hero of the story because....
